Activities

by Alane Baird

Technical Journalism Sophomore

What's college without activities? Classes are an important part of college life, but all classes and no activities make Joan a dull girl.

You have your choice of a flock of varied activities. And it's up to you to watch the Campus Brief column and articles in the Iowa State Daily, and campus bulletin boards for announcements of meetings and calls for applications for offices, chairmanships and committees. The sooner you fill in application blanks, the sooner you'll find yourself working on Veishea publicity or planning dance decorations. The Main Desk of the Memorial Union has a ready supply of blanks on which you'll list your previous experience, qualifications and ideas about the job.

Don't be afraid to introduce yourself to those active in your chosen activity or to go to a meeting by yourself. Members are as eager to meet you as you are to meet them. Then you'll be in the swing of things at Iowa State. Check this chart for activities that appeal to you.
